

Financial Literacy for Faith-Based Institutions and Divinity Schools

Enhancing Financial and Economic Growth

The Society for Financial Education and Professional Development (SFE&PD) teaches customized financial literacy seminars to pastors and ministers, students at divinity and theology schools, and individuals at faith-based institutions. Our mission is to increase the financial and stewardship knowledge of students, ministers and pastors by teaching practical money management concepts and skills to help them make informed financial decisions. The program is also designed for divinity students, ministers and pastors to be able to teach financial management skills to their congregants. We are working to enhance the financial literacy of religious leaders so they are empowered with the “Each One, Teach One” curriculum training model, which can be implemented in their respective faith communities.

Our seminars/workshops, developed for small and large groups, focus on:

- Practical applications for the financial and professional needs of divinity/ministry groups.
- Research-based national data to ensure each session is relevant.
- Interactive design with a dynamic format to engage audiences and encourage thoughtful decision-making.
- Results that give attendees the tools, knowledge, and skills for financial growth.
- Highly-skilled instructors – Experienced Certified Financial Planners, Financial Advisors, CPAs, authors, and other professionals in finance, investments, estate planning, professional development, and related fields.
- Customized instruction for face-to-face presentations and webinars.

Financial Education Training

Faith-Centered Approach for Stewardship of Financial Resources

Sacred Money Wars

What is Your Will?

Financial Planning for Pastors and Ministers

Student Loan Management

Pastors, Ministers and the IRS

Managing and Maintaining a 501(c)(3) Organization

Maximizing Your Financial Blessing through Investing

Credit and Debt Management

The Church and Risk Management

How to Manage a Church through Economic Cycles

SFE&PD’s seminars are recognized by the U.S. Department of the Treasury’s Office of Financial Education for meeting their criteria for financial education programs.

SFE&PD is a leading financial literacy and professional development nonprofit organization on a mission to enhance financial and economic literacy in the United States and to provide training to help individuals to achieve their financial and professional goals. We conduct successful financial education initiatives nationwide and teach money management skills to individuals of all ages and backgrounds.

Society for Financial Education and Professional Development, Inc. (SFE&PD)
703.920.3807

www.sfeld.org – Join us on Facebook; Follow us on Twitter